Starcraft: Broodwar - Crack - No CD StarCraft: Broodwar StarCraft: Broodwar - Patcher - Windows No CD - 1.16.0 1.16.0 (Teaser) To the Editor: Re “New York Cites $86 Million in Medical Bills For Poor Patients” (column, June 4): When I used to go to the emergency room for chronic back pain, I was offered little help with my bills, except to tell me to go to a hospital for a minute or two and wait there while they worked out what to do about them. A friend who has multiple sclerosis was advised simply to take her medicine and not to mention her symptoms to doctors. Now I am almost 60 and I am facing a choice of seeing a family doctor about my chronic back pain or waiting to be sent to a hospital and given an operation. I cannot afford the luxury of waiting.one.0206567.ref036]. A study of the effects of sport-specific training on brain function revealed an age-dependent effect of exercise on executive function in older adults, but no such training effect in middle-aged adults [\[@pone.0206567.ref040\]](#). In our sample of young adults, the mean effect size was close to zero. In contrast, a systematic review of effect sizes in younger samples aged 16 to 30 years showed large effects in studies reporting medium and large-sized samples (i.e.,  $>200$  subjects), whereas the effect sizes were small in studies with smaller sample sizes [\[@pone.0206567.ref022\]](#). In two studies [\[@pone.0206567.ref013\]](#),[\[@pone.0206567.ref014\]](#) with relatively small sample sizes, the mean effect size of trained participants in comparison with inactive controls was 0.30 in the experimental group and 0.05 in the control group. To our knowledge, the present study is the first of its kind to provide a detailed analysis of training-induced effects on cognitive functions in a large number of participants including both older and younger participants. In general, it confirms that the effects of physical training on cognitive functions are considerable, although for most cognitive functions the effects were small. The study confirms that the size of the effects of physical training on cognitive functions is dependent on the cognitive domain, and that the effect sizes were notably larger for older adults in comparison with young adults 570a42141b
