The Elden Ring is the spiritual figure of the goblin kingdom that inhabits the Lands Between. The way the Elden Ring is formed is known as the Vengeful Slicing Ritual. Each knight is allocated the powers of one of the Factions. Each Faction is a part of the Culture. The more that you advance, the more the Factions begin to interact one with another, and the Lands Between becomes fiercer. At the same time, the Culture splits into more Factions, and you decide which Faction will oppose the others.

Size and form of the Elden Ring and Factions

There are seven Factions in the Elden Ring. The warriors of the Elden Ring are called Knights. Among the seven Factions, the shield of the Elden Ring has already spread throughout the entire world, and the others are slowly spreading their shield throughout the world. The blue Factions' shield has spread around the Elden Ring, and the magenta and red factions' shields are located at the Battle Staging Grounds.

My controller should look like this: public class CustomController :

MvcApplicationController { public
CustomController() : base() { } public override void
OnActionExecuting(ActionExecutingContext context)
{ // TODO } } And I want to call it like this: public ActionResult Index() { return View(); } But whenever I call this action, an empty index view
