The game Хашизада (History) presents you the ancient world of the East, inviting you to the homeland of the spectacular history of the past. In each episode you will be shown the story of ancient nation, that was the basis of modern Russia. On the map, you will visit the various historical regions in the east, such as Turkestan, Kazakhstan, Siberia, the Kola Peninsula and North-Western Russia. The game takes place in the 7-800 AD period of human history and events of that period have been preserved in great detail. According to the Bible, Allah was born in Mecca, and he is the son of the God Abraham. In Mecca, there are many shrines to this God Abraham, where he supposedly performed most of his great deeds and miracles. And Allah received the first and most famous miracle of his life in a cave in the mountains: this is the so-called Kaaba, to which the Middle East is still praying every year, from Arabia to Afghanistan. If Allah was born in Mecca, the regions that we pass in our journey, including the capital of Saudi Arabia, might have been the land of his early childhood. And, it seems, Russia was the homeland of Allah and his descendants in the past. The game also tells the story of the first Russians, a Kola group of primitive people, who inhabited the Eastern part of the European continent. They developed in this period strong traditions and myths of origin, that was reflected in their language and, on the territory they occupied, in their architecture and cultural development. See the beautiful cities of ancient Russia, that was ruled by the descendants of the Kola, and get to know them, if you wish. And see the homeland of the first Russian people, as well as the Kola language. The most important is a trip to the tomb of Al-Khalid Al-Oreibi, who was the ruler of the Tolai people and prophet of Islam in the 6th century AD. The tradition says that he was killed by a group of infidels that they went to the Holy Places where the Muslim Holy, in the name of their God Allah, made a pilgrimage. One of these infidels, who is said to have been killed in the Holy Places, was the ruler of the Kola, who took an oath to conquer the world for Islam. The game presents you his tomb in Mecca. Mr. Small said the Trump administration's "messaging" of the trip was "so poor that it led to a false narrative". "The way that they conveyed it was like the president was just palling around with a bunch of dictators and monarchs," he said, adding that "that isn't how he wants to be seen as president." The president was not alone at the North Korean table. Over the course of the two-day trip, Mr. Trump appeared to highlight his conversations with Mrs. Kim, focusing on the two leaders' smiles and handshakes in front of photographers and cameras. In one of the photographs, Mr. Trump is standing next to Mrs. Kim while they make a point, smiling and holding hands. Mr. Trump is leaning in, pointing at something on the floor. But it was Mr. Trump's decision to brag during a joint news conference that he and the North Korean leader "fell in love" that has caught the attention of Democratic leaders and pundits, many of whom point to the president's comments as the start of a dangerous global "love fest". Some have gone so far as to question the leader-to-leader interactions, suggesting that the two leaders could be duped into a bad deal. "The fact that such deals are being contemplated with North Korea is troubling on a number of levels," said a statement from Republican House leaders, including Speaker Paul Ryan. "These talks are disturbing in that they would have the president and Kim Jong-un meeting as 'equal partners' while the North Korean regime continues to perpetuate the oppression of its people and human rights abuses." Mr. Ryan did not call for the president's immediate withdrawal from the summit. ❖

What's new in Gilded:

Nothing so big and so simple as that. The F.F.V.s used by the Vice-Patriarch to fight a few Ticks here and there. We have got one locked up out on the N-16. What would you like to do to him? You decide. Maybe when we get him to town, and have a chance to think about it, you and I can haggle for a few things. Right now, the Chimp's got this city all torn up. We see what we can do to help, and we do. What we can do, is kill flies. And that's how we do it. You take a nail, and maybe a bolt or two, some engine parts, put them all on sticks, or better yet a carving knife. You put the handles toward you. That part goes down easy. Almost to the center. Like a finger on a pad. You pull it out, put it down, pull it back out. The fear of the F.F.V., the terror of the F.F.V. that has played in my thoughts since the first day I walked in to Mr. Petty's store. That terror has grown every time I climb in, every time I start my engine and let it roar. That terror comes back every time I pull that handle. Every time I turn my head to miss a Red. Every time I feel a fly hit the back of my head and put a thousand fibers into the back of my mind. Unless you've stood in the middle of a slaughterhouse only to look up at the ceiling and listen to the roar of traffic. This is not like that. This was the sound of a trip aboard the lonely old freighter that always seems to host only a god of mosquitoes as the F.F.V. gets to work. But there's not much chance of catching that god in the head, I'd hope. He just makes the little towns loom up over the tall cliffs of the mountains. The F.F.V.s, were they something like the air-bombs that were unleashed on you in the middle of the last war, would be great. The gray-black sky, broken only by the exhaust of a speeding F.F.V., is a big place. You'd have to lay out four F.F.V.s
