To those who are downloading this tool can we ask you to tell us about it. A: the file is a winRAR archive. You will need something like winRAR or 7zip to open it. Product Description Two of the oldest men in the world. One of the prettiest. The other of the very finest humor. What could possibly go wrong? The Daily Show's big-hearted hosts Jon Stewart and John Oliver know what it's like to be older than the boys. As senior correspondents for the news media, their work is frequently a team effort. But as young a band as they are, they're about to learn something they've never felt -- they're kids! In this intimate comedy, their first major feature film, the duo realizes their secret crush, likes them back, and risks everything to reveal the shocking truth. Even when it's just the two of them -- as they are most often -- the team behind "The Daily Show" laughs out loud. An east Berlin neighborhood with a notorious history and a reputation for violent crime -- so says the "Insider" at Berlin's Internet Service Provider (ISP) berlin.de, who provided CNN with a video of the neighborhood which sparked a national debate about the quality of life in the German capital. The video shows the Schöneberger Raststätte neighborhood during the day and at night, with empty streets and a seemingly seedy atmosphere. Those who are familiar with the area say the level of crime there is a reflection of the local reputation. "There's a reason this neighborhood is called 'gentrification-proof,'" an expert on the scene, who asked to remain anonymous, told CNN. The area has seen a dramatic influx of gentrifying young professionals and foreigners since the mid-2000s. However, the experts also say the ongoing gentrification has only made the place more dangerous. "If you look at the Schöneberger Raststätte today, you can't imagine where people like in the 1970s and 1980s would have lived," the expert says. "But it's not only the history of the neighborhood that has created a bad image. The infrastructure is not up to a residential area of this size, and the local police service didn't take into account the violent crime in the neighborhood." Read More!
