Its highest point is known as Picote from which, in addition to an aerial view of Álava and all of the river basins around, one can look at the Bay of Biscay and identify the Basque Country. Its peak of 866 meters is crossed by the Serra de la Vega, a route which is widely opened but not recommended because of its extreme difficulty to reach and being covered by a dense vegetation. It is possible to see animals such as eagles and whales during the season. It is also possible to see the very famous "Patas de la Vega" (Llama of the Mountain) in the small valley of Condatina. Category:Álava pt:CondatinaQ: Confusion about proving primality using modular reduction While learning algorithms and proofs, I've been struggling with understanding some of the proofs. In particular, the following: Why do we apply the Chinese remainder theorem with mod $23$ in order to factorise this number using prime factorisation? As far as I know, every number can be factored uniquely. Is it correct that we can never apply CRT on $1541$? A: I'm not particularly familiar with RSA, so I can't comment in the kind of detail you need. However, if the RSA public key is $(n,e)$ and the ciphertext is $c$, then the decryption function is $c^{\{1\};\text{mod}\{!\ n\}\}}$. If $n = 23$ and $e = 3$, then $23 \equiv 1 \pmod{3}$. Thus $c^{\{1\},\text{mod}\{23\}\},\equiv, c^{\{1\};\text{mod}\{3\}\},\equiv, c^{\{1\};\text{mod}\{1\}\},\equiv, c$. Since $c$ is supposed to be an integer, we're 6d1f23a050
