

Hi, I have the same problem as <https://support.microsoft.com/en-us/kb/953230>. I just don't have the update and I cannot install it because it says I don't have internet access. I am trying to activate windows 7 ultimate off a usb stick. The registry hack did not work for me. I then tried the phone activation method, but it won't let me. How can I get windows activated? I experienced the issue that has been resolved in my post and described in my post. According to the Support article, on the last day of the activation trial period, after this update is applied, a screen will appear, similar to the screen that appears the first time a new Windows installation is activated. The screen will state that the software is not activated and will list reasons why it is not activated. After you choose Yes or Yes to Activate, the software will be activated. Hi, after the Windows 7 installation I was having alot of problems such as driver missing, slow internet connection, etc. I resolved all these problems by following the steps given in this article. I am having one major problem now, after the Windows 7 installation I am not able to install/activate the Windows XP from a USB drive. After following all steps mentioned in this article, it is displaying no internet access. I have downloaded and tried the update from the Microsoft web site, but it is not downloading. I am restoring a system with Windows 7 Home Premium & IE9. I previously tried to install win8.1 pro as a trial, but was prompted to activate within 30 days of the original install. That did not work as expected, so I did the registry hack. That did not work. I then, after reading this, did the phone activation step. That also did not work. Finally, I tried to activate Win7 Home Premium. It did not accept my password. I used the account I use for ie9, and it never asked for a password, but it activated, and I am able to use ie9/pro, but I'm not able to log into my home premium.I can log into my work account, with a different login name, but home premium is the only account, that is not letting me log in. I am able to install/activate through ie9 & win7, but would like to keep my home premium, so if I can activate home premium, through win7, I would be most grateful. I will only need to keep Home premium for testing, as I will be returning to win7.I will, be the first to admit. I don't know much, but I want home premium to work, as I have all my music, videos, photos, tax documents, etc.I hope you can help. Thank you, and I apologize for the long post, and the incomplete problem description. Sincerely,John
